[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO DECEMBER 21.

Dispatches from Versailles.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 20.—The anxiety of the Germans for peace is intense. German troops are on the point of mutiny. The bombardment of Versailles is expected every moment. The French have in position guns capable of throwing shells through the King's palace and driving the Germans from their works on the north and east of Versailles.

A correspondent with the 10th corps at Vendome, writing on the 18th, says that after severe fighting on the 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th, on both banks of the Loire, the Germans occupy Freteral, Vendome and Epernay. General Chancey is retiring slowly and in tolerable order, hoping to join the 21st corps under Juarez and the troops near Le Mans and Conlie. The fighting is tedious and bloody. The Germans need rest.

Further from Paris.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—A correspondent from Paris writes on the 19th, saying: We have arrived at starvation point. The supply of meat will last but a few days longer. In the event of the failure of the next sortie Ducrot, Favre, and others of the Government, will leave Paris by balloon to prosecute the war in the provinces. Trochu will remain till the surrender of the city.

Change of Base.

LE MANS, Dec. 15.—There has been a second change of base. This diffusion of the army of the Loire is successful strategy, as there has been brilliant fighting near Paris. After leaving Orleans the army of the Loire made a flank movement on Vendome. It might have been easy to defend Tours. Both armies cut loose. The country here presents the same facilities for rapid changes of base that Grant found on the seaboard of Virginia. The army of the Loire has simply moved some fifty miles north of their former position, and there joined hands with the new army. The end of the army of the Loire is not just yet.

Position of Ducrot.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 16.—Ducrot has not re-entered Paris but remains at Vincennes. It is certain he contemplates a renewal of the attempt to break through and effect a junction with the army of Chancey, who is gallantly endeavoring to fight his way north-west.

German Reserve Hurrying up.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 18.—We have entered another period of ominous silence, which is probably the precursor of a new storm of fire that will swallow more than a thousand human lives. Meanwhile reinforcements are arriving rapidly, about 5,000 daily. New Years will see upwards of 100,000 old soldiers recalled to the ranks after spending years in occupations of peace, and will be gathered around Paris to strengthen the deep lines of investment which deaths, wounds and sickness have recently weakened.

The guarding in Germany of 350,000 French prisoners has been entrusted to the Landwehr who have been called out.

With the exception of boys and old men the whole German population carries arms.

Italian Affairs.

ROME, Dec. 15.—There is a severe Parliamentary conflict at Florence regarding the future status of the Pontiff. This important question was submitted to Parliament to take precedence over all others. The extreme left will endeavor to destroy the Pope, the Sacred College and the whole body Episcopal. The extreme right will try to save as much as possible of the court power and dynasty of St. Peter. The question of the transfer of the capital has caused a break between the opposite partisans on the ministerial project for guaranteeing the independence of the Supreme Pontiff and exercise of spiritual authority.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Mr. Bright has resigned with the pension due to a Minister for two years' service. The two years ended on the 16th inst.

WASHINGTON CITY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—In the House a number of Southern members spoke in favor of a general amnesty.

EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The New York Tribune to-morrow morning will have the following: The fullest powers are to be conferred upon General Schenck to conduct to a final settlement all the questions now pending between the United States and England.

Another Mexican Grant in California—Five Leagues of Tin Mines Claimed.

The following communication appears in the Cincinnati Commercial of Nov. 29:

While the newspapers are discussing the McGarrahan claim, and the reasons for Grant taking so much interest therein, it may not be improper to call the attention of the public to another fraud, that is nearly if not of quite equal magnitude to the great McGarrahan swindle. I refer to the attempt to float a Mexican grant on the Temeschal tin mines in San Bernardino county, California.

A succinct history of this case may not be uninteresting to your many readers. About 1853 or 1854, Leonard Serrano, a native Californian, put in a claim before the Board of Land Commissioners, which were in session at that time in California, for a Mexican grant of five leagues of land to cover what was known as the Rancho de Temeschal. After due investigation his claim was rejected, and so the matter rested until 1859, when tin was discovered, in rather a romantic way, within three miles of the Serrano house; but in the interim Serrano had died. Upon the discovery of tin Mr. Abel Stearns, of Los Angeles, bought the widow Serrano's claim. Stearns, by the way, was the first man who ever sent any gold to the United States Mint, he having sent gold taken from near the Mission of San Fernando, twenty-five miles from Los Angeles, more than ten years before Marshall discovered gold in Sutter's mill-race. Stearns took an appeal in the United States District Court from the Land Commissioner's decision, and after considerable delay obtained a decree for five leagues of land. The locators of the mining claims appealed to the Supreme Court at Washington, where, in 1867, the finding of the court below was reversed, and the claim and mines were declared public land. During the pendency of the result in Washington Pioch & Co., of San Francisco, tried unsuccessfully to purchase some of the lodes from the original locators in the tin districts. After the decision of the Supreme Court Pioch bought the San Jacinto Rancho, a grant that was confirmed by the Land Commissioners about sixteen years ago, and situated twenty-six miles from Temeschal. Pioch is now before the Land Commissioner at Washington, trying, with considerable show of success, to float this grant on the tin mines. Here are tin mines that were discovered eleven years ago, from which ore has been taken which would yield over 60 per cent of tin—the only locality in the United States where gold has been found in paying quantities; and yet they are undeveloped. The only thing that has been done with them was to make a tin box, which was presented to ex-Secretary Seward, and which was itemized by nearly every paper in the United States as something very remarkable. Yes, all of these years these mines have been dormant; the discoverers of the mines have not been permitted to work them, and the grant claimants would not work them for fear of attracting public attention to their true value before they had the title arranged to suit themselves. If these mines were equally developed they would be as valuable as the New Idria Quicksilver Mines; yet the country is losing revenue which would be derived from the working of the same, all because a few men desire by fraud to take that which justly belongs to the people.

Among the "baggage" of the Bavarian prisoners captured in the late battles were twenty or more wagon loads of stolen female attire of every description.

Russia and Austria.

Writing from Vienna Nov. 11, the London Times correspondent says: "The first and unmistakable effect of the Russian Circular has been a cause of powerful diversion in favor of Prussia, who need now not much fear to be troubled by any mediating efforts on the part of the neutrals. How far this was intended or even preconcerted the attitude of Prussia in this question will show. If, on our side, people cannot help remembering the rumors which have been circulated about the interview at Ems previous to the war, and the distinct enunciation of Russia that she was ready to side with Prussia if Austria took part against her, the time and mode which Russia has chosen to bring forward her claims cannot but arouse the idea that Russia did not quite place implicit faith in any promises which might have been made of Prussian support in this question as an equivalent for her friendly neutrality in the present war, and that she chose a time while Prussia had her hands still full of work and could not yet afford to make light of the friendship of Russia. But however this may be, as far as this country at least is concerned, a great diversion has been effected, the Franco-German war has been thrown into the background. For you, and indeed for most other European countries, the Eastern question is only one of general political and commercial interest; for Austro-Hungary it is a question of life and death. Not that there is any wish of extending in that direction or even of exercising any influence—on the contrary, Austro-Hungary has enough to do with her own motley nationalities not to take more of them, even as a gift. Besides, this Empire has so good a natural frontier in that direction in the Carpathians and the Danube and Save that it cannot desire a better one. Finally, in the present state of the Dualistic Constitution of the Empire, any accession of territory on either side would destroy the basis of the present arrangement, which reposes on the balance and parity of the two portions of the Empire; but the eastern and southern frontiers of the monarchy are inhabited by fragments of races, the bulk of whom dwell in the adjacent Turkish Provinces. As the case everywhere else in Europe, these races have a tendency to unite and form nationalities. No amount of political freedom and material welfare can eradicate this tendency here any more than elsewhere, and for Austro-Hungary it is a question of life and death that the fragments of Slavonic and Rouman races which inhabit her eastern and southern frontier lands should not gravitate outside. As long as Roumanians, Servians and Bulgarians are left to themselves to work out their national programme, Austro-Hungary has not only nothing to fear, but, on the contrary, everything to gain; for this would lead to a more settled state of things, and put an end to the agitation now prevailing which exists in the kindred populations dwelling in Austro-Hungary; but if Russia were allowed to take in hand the management of these people, this country would have a Damocles' sword suspended over her head, and Russia would have it in her power to exercise the most fatal influence over the destinies of Austro-Hungary, crippling her by exciting internal disturbances. This being the position of this country in the Eastern question, it must necessarily watch very carefully every step which she might take in this direction."

The Pesther Lloyd observes, on the reports of a Russo-German alliance, that such an alliance would be an impossibility, as a victorious Germany can have no interest in assisting Russia to obtain her ends in the East. "That Germany, victorious abroad and disturbed by no one in her developement at home, should help Russia to crush Turkey and Austria at one blow—that Germany, already bleeding from a thousand wounds, should expose herself to the possibility of a new war, which, in the most favorable event, could have no other result than the ruin of the Hapsburg monarchy—which is now no longer dangerous to Germany—and to assist in the foundation of a great Panslavist State, which would immediately become dangerous to her; this is an impossibility and an absurdity,—absurd for a statesman like Bismarck, and impossible for a nation like Germany." The Lloyd adds that "if Russia is really blind enough to contemplate making an attack upon Austria and Turkey, the worst that is to be expected of Prussia and Germany is that they should remain peaceful lookers-on of the struggle. More Austria does not ask. She herself will provide for the rest." With regard to the present crisis, the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna combats the argument of Prince Gortschakoff, that, because of the changes in the Principalities, the treaty is so materially altered as to justify the action of Russia. These changes, it says, were the result of joint European action, approved by Russia. The Vienna paper adds that the attitude of England will have a most important influence on that of the other Powers. Turkey has her mind made up for the worst, and will not be pacified by diplomatic suggestions. For Austria the question is every whit as important as for the Porte. The war of 1866 drove Austria out of Germany; if Russia succeeds in her designs, she will, no less than Turkey, be driven out of Europe. Russia need not conquer Constantinople to be able by means of her national and religious propagandism, to oppress and bind in Austria on the east and south. The Neue Freie Presse closes its article with these significant and unmistakable words: "At all events, the step of the St. Petersburg Cabinet opens up a very serious perspective; and we in Austria must only hope that our Government grasps the importance of this new revelation in its entire bearing, and that in Austria there are not wanting men and strength (Thatkraft), of which there will be need, in order to meet successfully the dangers of a perhaps very near future." In another article on the subject the same paper says that Prussia will neither impede nor give armed aid to Russia's movement.

The survivors of the officers and crew of the United States steamer Oneida have been paid a full year's pay and allowance in addition to the amount due those lost by the sad disaster. This was in accordance with a resolution passed by Congress at its last session. The only claims remaining unpaid are those of a few families living in Europe, and a half dozen Japanese servants who went down at the time of the collision of the Oneida with the Bombay.

In case it is finally decided that the Pacific railroads must pay their own interest it is said that there are capitalists all over the country who have to hand over to the United States large amounts of profits in Pacific railroad investments.

English Account of the Situation before Paris.

[Mr. Russell's ("Bull Run") ... (Nov. 16) of London Times.]

Has Paris sufficient provisions to hold out much longer? This is a question which every one here (Versailles) is asking, and which every one answers according to his own idea. Accounts received from the capital itself are conflicting. I have spoken to Americans who came out of Paris little more than a week ago, and they say there were then plenty of [illegible], but this is very much doubted along the line of the Crown Prince of Saxony's army. During the last week the nights have been foggy, and consequently the sentinels at the foreposts have not been able to see at any great distance; but on several occasions they have heard the sound of voices—those of women as well as those of men—in advance of the French outposts, and they have also heard digging and plucking up, as if persons were searching for vegetables. Only a few nights since a party were heard advancing towards the German lines. The sentinels fired, but fortunately without any fatal result. The party proved to be one of ... women and children. "Revenue Reform."

The New York Herald, in an article on the visionary propositions of the "revenue reforms" has these observations:

Now, true revenue reform should go deeper into this question of ... taxes. We look in vain through the ... of the eloquent speakers at ... to find any suggestions for the ... of taxation from tea and sugar and coffee. We are asked to look at the English tariff as ... tariff. Well, the English tariff ..., is levied upon nine articles—spirits, ... wine, tea and coffee, sugar and tobacco, currants, raisins and chicory. Of these articles tea, coffee and sugar pay thirty millions annually, or more than one-third of the whole revenue. Now, if the revenue reformers mean to popularize their cause, if they mean to take hold of the people, let them add to their platform what the humblest and poorest can understand, and remove taxation from articles which are necessaries of life. The true theory of all taxation is to put the burdens upon the shoulders that can bear them. John Bright recently called upon England to give her laboring men a "free breakfast table." He proposed to do it by abolishing the impost upon the tea, coffee and sugar which form a part of the breakfast of the poor. This is true, high democratic ground. Our friends must not be content with free iron, lumber, wool and coal. A tax upon these does not begin to fall upon the workingman as heavily as one cent a pound upon tea or sugar or coffee, and the true reform is that which makes the necessities of life as cheap as possible.

Still, with all its faults and crudities, this is a great party, with many noble possibilities and a splendid work before it. Nor must our politicians overlook its importance, nor the necessity of conceding to the West and the South what they will surely demand. We do not think that there is enough in the strength of the party to embarrass the political canvass of 1872. That will be fought upon clean and square political lines. The revenue reformers in both parties will, as a body, prefer to remain with their organizations than to risk defeat by secession in a Presidential year. The issues will grow clearer by discussion and argument, the true principles will be found, the people will know what they really want and what they can really obtain, and by 1876 the cause will be ripe enough for trial and decision by the people at their supreme high court of a Presidential canvass.

The report of the Commissioner of Agriculture states that the Department proposes to publish an anatomic work on entomology, in which known American insects of each order will be accurately figured upon copperplate, and which has been declared, by those competent to judge the most complete and exhaustive effort ever made in this direction. It will be a valuable aid to practical entomology, and a desideratum for State entomologists and the naturalists of agricultural colleges, upon whose investigation and suggestions depend the possibility of reducing in some degree the losses from insect ravages, which are annually computed by tens and even hundreds of millions.

Advices of November 12th from Blois state that at the time the army of the Loire, which was then in camp beyond Arternay, was camping in snow. The snow was nearly a foot deep in the woods of the vicinity. From this fact may be formed some idea of the inclemency of the season at the theater of war in France.

The Daily Oregonian.

THURSDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 22, 1870.

Revelations of the Late Session.

A letter to the Bulletin from Jacksonville gives a more specific account of Mr. Fay's charges against certain members of the Legislature than had previously been reported. According to this letter Mr. Fay in his recent speech at Jacksonville said that during the late Senatorial contest at Salem he had endeavored to induce the members from Southern Oregon to keep out of a caucus until the interests of that part of the State as to railroads were fully secured. Messrs. Wells and Burnett, had given a pledge, with others, to this effect. Fay, however, says he had reason to suspect the two members just named. Finally Wells took Fay into his room on the Friday night before the Senator was elected, and told him that "Burnett wanted $2,000 to stay out of the caucus." Fay then asked Wells whether he wanted some "chicken pie" too. Wells replied that he "ought to have as much as Jack" (Burnett), and added that Waldron of Josephine wanted $2,000 also. We quote further from this letter, which purports to be, and doubtless is, a very exact report of Fay's speech:

> On the morning of the Sunday following, in the presence of Sheriff Klippel, Wells was accused by Fay of having sold himself for $2,000 to go into the caucus, and he admitted the fact. Afterwards, on the same day, he declared that he would stay out of the caucus. The next morning, before the hour of session, Wells told Fay he had determined to go into caucus, and so would Burnett. At noon that day, money was paid them to do so, and they went into the caucus in violation of their pledges.

Now isn't this a pretty record? The charges, it will be observed, are not of "Radical" origin; they come from undoubted Democratic authority. In his speech Fay said further that Burnett came down to Portland after the adjournment of the Legislature and received from a "wealthy man" here the sum of $3,000 in gold. What the odd $1,000 was for we are not informed, but of course it was for some other job in the Legislature. We give another extract from the letter:

> He said, as all of us here know, that before they went to the Legislature, Burnett and Wells were both poor; Burnett was too hard up to pay a note of $75 which Fay held against him for [illegible] over two years, and Wells had to coax a friend to whom he had sold a horse to pay the price a month in advance of the agreed time to pay his expenses to Salem. Yet after the Senatorial election they each had plenty of money. He related what we all know here, that since Jack Burnett had come back, he offered a certain merchant in this county $4,000 in gold for a part interest in his business, but that the offer was refused, that the merchant said he did not want any man in business with him who made his money that way. Fay also told another thing well known here; that while Wells was very poor before he went to Salem, he has been able since his return here to forward $1,600 in gold coin to the Wallamet for stock. If they did not sell their votes for this money they both have now, although so poor before they went to Salem, Fay said, let them dare to tell how they came by it.

And this is the way in which Col. Kelly's election was secured. It is no wonder that a Senator is elected whom even his own party does not want. Money did the business, and that money was furnished by a ring who own Kelly and hope to make him profitable to them. How many other votes they were forced to buy does not yet appear; perhaps there will be more revelations on this subject in good time.

These disclosures of Democratic corruption in the Legislature, proving the election of their Senator by the lavish expenditure of money, form a very proper finale for the course of that party during the late campaign. They howled incessantly about the corrupt intentions and devices of the Republicans, and asserted again and again that Senator Williams was to be re-elected with money, if re-elected at all. So often was it repeated by such prints as the Herald, that money was to be used in the Senatorial election that many Democrats came to believe it, and in consequence the venal class thought it a good opportunity to get into the Legislature, and it became necessary for the ring managers to buy them. And this is the grand result of all the virtuous indignation expended by the Democrats during the campaign in denouncing the corrupt intentions of the "Radicals."

The School Land Swindle.

The action taken by the last Legislature of this State in attempting to divert the school lands of the State from their legitimate objects and making gifts of them to private corporations and political rings, has led to the introduction in the Senate by Judge Williams of the following joint resolution which was read twice and ordered printed. It was introduced on the 5th inst.:

> Whereas, doubts have arisen as to the effect of the act for the admission of Oregon, approved February fourteen, eighteen hundred and fifty-nine, so far as it relates to the five hundred thousand acres of land granted to said State by an act entitled "An act to appropriate the proceeds of the public lands and to grant pre-emption rights," approved September four, eighteen hundred and forty-one: Therefore,
> Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Congress, by its said act admitting said State into the Union, did, and hereby doth, assent to the application of said lands for the support of common schools as made in the second section of the eighth article of the constitution of said State.

A correspondent of the New York Herald in London, writes a long letter in which he states that recent events have changed the whole current of English popular feeling in favor of France. It is mainly to the attitude assumed by Russia with the evident concurrence of Prussia that this revulsion of feeling in England is due. We are now told that "Prussian arrogance, since the great successes in France, has become unbearable," and that it is the "universal wish that France may obtain deliverance from her enemies." The correspondent continues: "Whatever may have been thought or felt at the beginning of the war, the majority of Englishmen are strongly opposed to the position which Bismarck has assumed, and which, backed by Russia, she will keep, unless a succession of Prussian defeats make the French formidable, and enables Austria to feel herself in a position to be heard. With France once freed from the foe which is draining her life-blood, she can always be more than a match for Prussia, and, with the help of England and Austria, can defy Russia and Prussia, and secure Turkey against Russian aggression." Here, then, is the whole secret of the change in the current of British sympathy. It makes ever so much difference when the British ox is gored. The sympathy for France in England proceeds wholly from a view as to how the complete subjugation of France will affect the influence and position of England in European politics.

A New York paper says that the enormous shipments of arms, all of most improved make, from that port for France, show that the French Government is in earnest and in funds, and that when it calls on the people to rise en masse it means to supply them with "shooting irons."

The Cry about "Monopolies."

In this country home producers are often called "monopolists." We hear of the "iron monopoly," of the "wool monopoly," and of the "monopoly" of a dozen other things which are protected under our system against foreign competition. The "monopolists," we are told, are making astonishing sums of money, because the laws discriminate in their favor and enable them to amass wealth out of the vast profits of manufacture. And hence it happens that every man who is engaged in any branch of manufacturing enterprise in the United States is termed a "bloated monopolist," is called a person of "special privileges," and is spoken of invidiously as one specially favored by laws which enable him to make money and rise to opulence, while the same laws make his fellow men poor and keep them so.

This is a pathetic story. Observe, however, how easily it is exploded.

If the iron producers are making such enormous profits out of their business, why don't the free traders and "revenue reformers" go into that business too? There is a free field for competition. Surely if the profits are so great the free traders are not the men to let the opportunity slip. Why don't they go to making pig iron? There are chances enough. If there are such vast profits in making iron under the so-called "monopoly system" existing now, the free trader as well as the protectionist may go in for a share of them.

The same in regard to the "wool monopoly." If the profits of manufacturing wool are so enormous as some would make us believe, why don't those who see the chance rush into the business too? If the profits of growing wool are out of all reasonable bounds, it is strange indeed that men so sharp-sighted as free traders are, do not go at once into sheep husbandry. They would do it, undoubtedly, if there was the money in it which they profess to believe there is.

In case any one industry is more profitable than another, is it not reasonable to suppose that men will engage in that one in which they can make the more money? No set of men can monopolize the industries of this country. They are open to all who chose to engage in them. The production of wool, woolens, iron, &c., cannot be more profitable under the protection system than other branches of business are, because if it were there would be a general rush into manufacturing enterprises of that class, and the great competition resulting from it would at once reduce the profits to a minimum and give the consumer the goods at as cheap rates as they could be manufactured. There can be no monopoly in branches of business which are open to all who see fit to engage in them. Not a single branch of industry is protected under our laws which any man may not embark in if he thinks there is money to be made.

How glad the Herald would be if all the "claims" of the Southern ex-rebels could be let in and their payment assumed by the Government. For then the Southern "Democracy" would either be reimbursed for the losses they incurred in upholding the sacred Democratic principles of "State rights," or the credit of the country would be swamped and the whole debt be repudiated together. Either of these results would please the Herald and Democrats of its ilk. But they can't be accommodated.

The Republican majority in New Jersey at the late election was 3,423—exactly the same as the Democratic majority in 1868. The coincidence is commented on as somewhat remarkable.

OREGON.

Yamhill people are now rejoicing that they can come to Portland by river and rail and return home the same day.

People living along the base of the Coast Range in Yamhill are now generally engaged in hunting. They are capturing deer, bear and panther.

An effort is making to clear the Santiam river for navigation. We quote from a letter published in the Statesman:—A few days since a party of three, consisting of Gov. Ballard, Hon. Jason Wheeler and S. H. Claughton, Esq., made a trip by boat from Lebanon to Jefferson on the Santiam river, the object of which was to ascertain whether or not said river was navigable for steamers. And upon a thorough examination of the stream it was pronounced quite practicable for navigation by steamers by removing a few logs that have lodged in the channel, and others that lie upon the bank and project over the stream or channel where it nears the bank.

THE TERRITORIES.

Prodigious quantities of wild plums grow on the Yellowstone river. The Indians dry them for their winter's provision.

The North Pacific Coal Company are taking out large quantities of first-class coal at their mines between Helena and Blackfoot.

The scheme for the admission of Colorado into the Union as a State is being pushed with energy and is likely to succeed. The truth is the population of Colorado is too small, being only 55,000; but several States have been admitted with less. Oregon was five years a State before she had so many inhabitants.

A human skull was found two or three weeks ago imbedded in a mass of drift matter, on the Rosebud, fifty or sixty miles from the Yellowstone Mission. A fight took place near there four or five years ago between the Mountain Crows and a party of Sioux, which leads to the belief that the bones are the remains of one of the slain in that battle.

The Deer Lodge Independent says of the great sixty-mile race over the Deer Lodge course: "The race on the 16th inst. was a lively contest, and attracted a large number from the adjacent camps to our town. The horses Lizzard and Billy Bay were the contestants, and each displayed great powers of endurance and speed. Several thousand dollars changed hands, and withal we never saw such a race, and never expect to see the time beaten by animals of equal weight. Lizzard weighs only 680 pounds, and made 60 miles in 4 hours and 20 minutes, and could, without apparent injury to himself, have made the distance in four hours, as he trotted and walked the last ten miles. Bill Bay displayed good nerve and endurance, but was eclipsed by the smaller horse and as a matter of course received but little praise from friend or from foe."

WASHINGTON FACT AND GOSSIP.

A bill has passed the House to abolish the offices of Admiral and Vice Admiral.

The House has adopted by a vote of 165 to 5 a resolution abolishing the Internal Revenue system, except as to whisky and tobacco.

Of the Representatives now in the House, 170 have been re-elected. Forty-one of these gentlemen have served in two or more Congresses.

Instead of the Government losing the case in the sugar frauds of Louisiana, as stated in the New York Herald of the 9th, the Government has recovered $120,000 and all the sugar in dispute.

The Victoria Colonist says: One of the best operators on the Mainland Telegraph Line, is a young girl, 12 years of age, named Sarah McClure. She is stationed at Matsqui Prairie, where her father resides, and repeats every message that passes over that portion of the line. She receives messages by sound and is singularly correct.

WAR MISCELLANY.

The speed attained by French balloons is, with a fair wind, about as swift as that of express trains on our railroads.

The majority of the Bavarian soldiers captured by Palladine at the battle of Orleans are young fellows between 21 and 24. Many of the prisoners were mere lads from 16 to 19.

The French talk of using eagles to drag and guide their balloons, at least so says the World. We don't know whether the French or the World is responsible for this astonishing flight of balloonacy.

Mothers in Paris, like so many Niobes, are weeping for their children who were left in the provinces to nurse before the siege of the city, and from whom they have not heard for three months or more.

In all the hamlets, villages and small towns around Paris, the few inhabitants that have remained appear stupid with terror with which the Prussians had inspired them. Most of them are plunged in the deepest misery.

The French prefaced their sortie by twelve hours furious bombarding. That's the way we used to commence our attacks on the rebels. We always thought it a piece of asinine strategy thus to advertise an intended assault.

Private letters received at London, from Versailles, say the German losses before Paris and on the Loire since the 28th were immense. Correspondents are forbidden to communicate the truth. The publication of official returns show losses of over 12,000, with many returns lacking.

The grounds of the Tuileries, of the Louvre, and the public squares of Paris are to be transformed, as far as practicable, into extensive conservatories for the planting of hot-house vegetables, as a means of food supply for the winter. This does not seem to indicate any great lack of ordinary food in Paris.

Since 1800, England, the most insolent power in Europe, has been engaged in forty-nine wars. France fought thirty-seven wars in the same time; Russia has contended in twenty one; Austria in twelve, and Prussia in seven. These wars included nearly all the other nations of Europe, and the reader may judge from this statement whether Europe is a pleasant place for permanent residence.

In the late sortie, says a cable dispatch, the French were led by dismounted officers of high rank, and showed something of their traditional fire. Had not the Wurtemburgers been very steady while being driven back, and had not the Prussians arrived promptly to their support, the investment line might have been broken. The French, in fact, merely gained a better foothold for their future spring. Their great want is space to deploy their forces.

CURRENT NOTES.

A Rawling (Wyoming) petit jury was recently fined $10 each and their verdict set aside, because they indulged in a small game of "bean poker" while deliberating upon their judgment.

A gentleman named Miller, on California street, San Francisco, a few months since was presented with three live young alligators, by a gentleman who brought them from Louisiana. They are quite small at present, but seem to take kindly to the climate, and are growing quite fast. The gentleman does not intend to go into the alligator business very extensively, but is merely raising them as curiosities in their way. Mr. Woodward has sent to South America for alligators of a larger growth for his garden, where those who are curious in the matter can view them to their heart's content in a short time.

Superintendent Viall, at Helena, Montana, telegraphed to the Indian Bureau, on the 2d inst., that he had just returned from the Crow agency, where he had distributed annuity goods to one hundred and seventeen lodges. The Indians were well satisfied, and all were disposed and anxious to act in good faith towards the Government. The rest of the Indians would arrive in about three weeks. All the chiefs were present but two, and these latter were represented by messengers.

THURSDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 22, 1870.

CITY.

THE MAILS.—The Columbia river having closed, preventing the transportation of the mails between Portland and the Dalles, Mr. Underwood telegraphed on Tuesday to Ogden, directing that all mails be sent via Sacramento City and San Francisco till further orders. The time from the railroad to the Dalles is five days. There will, therefore, be five days mail to arrive at the Dalles, which had started by the Idaho route before the telegram was sent. Mr. Underwood is in the city now, negotiating an arrangement by which the mails may be brought through by the Columbia river trail. He is confident that he will make an arrangement to-day by which a mail will be started from Portland to-morrow, to reach the Dalles in two days and to return in two days, arriving here Sunday night, and thereafter to have two mails a week each way between the two points, so long as navigation shall remain closed.

GETTING MONOTONOUS.—The bogus money [illegible] of New York continue to send out their [illegible] baits to catch gudgeons. Every few days somebody hands us one of these circulars in which the scoundrels propose, for a small remittance of genuine currency bills, to send in return a large amount of bogus bills so neatly counterfeited as to defy detection. Everybody knows what this swindling bilk is and none but the greenest out of the green could be nipped by the "extremely advantageous offer." These circulars have lost even the quality of novelty, and as that was about the only attraction they ever had in these parts, the swindlers, counterfeiters and [illegible] who send them, might as well quit.

A DISGUSTING CASE DISPOSED OF.—The case [illegible] which has been on trial in the City Police Court for some days past, in which one [illegible] Foster, who claims to be an injured husband, was complainant, and Tilley Foster and [illegible] were defendants, was finally disposed of yesterday afternoon. After the final submission of the case, His Honor Judge Lewis remarked in substance, that although the defense was not clear, yet he was satisfied that no good end would be attained by a narration of the [illegible] details in a higher Court; that the law was made for the protection of marital obligations and could never have contemplated a case of this character. He was sorry the case had ever been brought into Court, for its investigation had lifted a veil from the condition, practices and morals of a large class in Portland that might better have remained covered up; that he would dismiss this case and discharge defendants, believing thereby he saved decent people from the infliction of the disgusting details of a case that ought never to have been publicly investigated. Whereupon the defendants moved to be discharged. During the whole of the investigation the court room was crowded with a motly congregation. C. B. Upton appeared for the [illegible]; Caples for the defendant.

"PALACE AND HOVEL."—Mrs. Rosa Martin, of this city, has laid upon our table the advance sheets of a new work entitled "Palace and Hovel, or Phases of Life in London," just issued from the publishing house of A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco. It is a work of 750 pages, with illustrations, consisting of every-day scenes in London, among all classes of society from the drawing-room down to the canaille dens of the poorer streets, portraits of distinguished personages, pictures of famous buildings, bridges, docks, public works, a complete and accurate map of London and its environs, etc., etc. The matter of the book, like its illustrations, deals with the conditions of society, contains graphic descriptions of persons and places, is profuse in personal biographies, anecdotes and incidents of life in the great metropolis of the world. It is not only an interesting but also instructive digest of the observations of an American in London by day and night, as outspoken, independent and [illegible] in tone when dealing with royalty as in portraying beggarly vice, a feature so seldom met with in American travelers as to be quite a refreshing novelty. The contents are too [illegible] in their scope, embracing altogether too many subjects for an enumeration here. The book is written in very superior style, and must prove an exceedingly readable, interesting and instructive one. It can be purchased only by subscription, of the agent, Mrs. Martin, who will commence to-day to canvass the city.

MASONIC ELECTION.—At the last regular communication of Multnomah Lodge No. 1, at Oregon City, the following officers were elected: J. [illegible] Fraser, W. M.; N. W. Randall, S. W.; Chas. [illegible], J. W.; J. T. Apperson, Secretary; Dr. [illegible] Barclay, Treasurer; C. McCue, Tyler. These officers will be publicly installed Dec. 26th, at 1 o'clock P. M., by the Grand Master, D. G. [illegible]

LARCENY CHARGES.—Sallie Dougherty was before the Police Judge on the charge of larceny. Having no defense, was fined twenty-five dollars. The case was appealed to the Circuit [illegible] trial. Harry Gavinaugh was brought up on a charge of robbery, the hearing of which was continued till to-day.

THE LOWER COLUMBIA.—The steamer Fannie [illegible] arrived last evening from the lower Columbia. She reports the running ice very heavy. No further trip below will be attempted for the [illegible]. Boats are still running to the east bank of the Columbia opposite the mouth of the Wallamet.

THE WALLAMET.—Yesterday morning the river [illegible] Stark street was frozen almost across, and ice remained far out in the river from the eastern bank till late in the day. It will evidently require but a few degrees increase of cold to close the Wallamet against steamboat navigation.

MOTION DAY AND ADJOURNMENT.—There will be two more days this week for jury trials in the Circuit Court to-day and to-morrow. Saturday will be devoted to the hearing of motions, and then the Court will adjourn till after the holidays.

THE THERMOMETER.—The mercury was down to 18 degrees, at 7 A. M. yesterday. At 9 o'clock it had risen to 20 degrees; but at midnight it was going down again, and will probably be found this morning lingering near "sweet sixteen."

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT.—The theater has been made very cozy and comfortable, by the erection of another stove on the left front of the auditorium.

SNOW.—We learn that a heavy snow storm was prevailing at Walla Walla yesterday, and that it was also snowing some at the Dalles.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The Astoria and Monticello boats are running through the slough and making regular trips.

The friends of "Wrestling Joe," in Connecticut, are inquiring for him—proving again that friends never forget a man whose prospects are looking up.

Ice cutting and packing was carried on yesterday upon a large scale and the crop promises to be a big one.

The 23d Infantry band gave their Wednesday afternoon concert at Couch's Lake instead of the Plaza.

Mr. Cardinell's dancing school will open to-night instead of Monday night as announced yesterday morning.

The Vancouver came up from the Columbia last evening, and though it required an hour and a half to cross that river, she will return this morning.

AMUSEMENTS.

[illegible] THEATER.—The performance of "The Chimney Corner" last evening was a splendid thing. It is a pretty little drama, and it was put on the stage in first-rate style. To close with, "Poor Pillicody" was played in the most laughable manner by Mr. Bates, Mrs. Bates, Clinton and Misses Inglis and Cummings.

TO-NIGHT—RICHELIEU.—This evening the great French drama "Richelieu" will be presented. On former occasions the performance of this play has always brought out full houses. The character of Richelieu is one in which Mr. Bates exhibits more of real dramatic genius than in almost any other we could name. The play abounds in gems of the rarest sort—literary, historic and poetic—and the representation has such a constant and rapid succession of incidents and situations that the interest of the spectator never flags.

MASONIC MEETING.—The stockholders of Masonic Building will take notice that all are requested to be on hand at the Masonic Lodge room at 7 o'clock, sharp, as directors are to be elected for the ensuing year, and other important [illegible] transacted.

Portland, December 20, 1870.

GOOD OLD SANTA CLAUS leaves about three score of orders per day at STONE'S for presents of all kinds which he proposes to distribute on Christmas night. He finds that he can get nice things for less money at Stone's than at any other place. Every stocking in the city should be hung up for he is buying largely.

Why is it that Kohn & Fishel keep the largest supply of Clothing in this city?

Because their sales require it.

Why can they afford to sell cheaper than any other house?

Because they buy in large quantities and get them cheaper, and because they are satisfied with small profits and quick returns, which system has brought them an enormous trade, and made them first in their business in the city.

At C. M. MARTIN'S GROCERY STORE, 145 First street, you can get fresh New Jersey Cranberries, as large as cherries, just received by Pacific Railroad.

Also California Grapes, Oranges, and all fruits of the season, fresh and delicious.

Also a Splendid Assortment of Fresh Vegetables and Groceries, including Fresh Butter, Eggs and fine old Cheese.

Also all kinds of Game and fat Poultry.

He keeps nothing but the BEST ARTICLES for his customers.

December is here, with her storms and her rain,
And it makes the folks of cold weather complain.
Hark ye, dear gentlemen, this need not be so,
You can all be kept warm, for O'NEIL & CO.
Can fit you so nicely, so snug and so warm,
With CLOTHES that are proof 'gainst the bitterest storm,
And they sell them so cheaply, that all who go there,
Unlike Flora McFlimsey, can find something to wear.

A DRAWING-ROOM CHAT.—The following conversation took place in the drawing-room of a mansion on Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, one pleasant forenoon, about ten days ago. (Two ladies, Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Knight had just dropped in for a morning call on Mrs. Rapelje, the lady of the house.)

Mrs. M.—My dear Mrs. Rapleje are you sick? You look quite delicate.

Mrs. R.—No; not sick, exactly, but suffering from debility and dreadfully nervous. Do you know, I could cry this minute.

Mrs. K.—Too much excitement, I'm afraid.

Mrs. R.—Perhaps. But what can one do? In the gay season, one must give parties and attend them.

Mrs. M.—I suppose so. Fashion is law—more's the pity. But you must take something to tone your system or you'll break down.

Mrs. R.—I hate medicine! But you shall prescribe for me. What would you advise?

Mrs. M.—Well; I'll tell you my plan. Whenever I'm nervous, or hysterical, or have a headache, or am at all out of sorts, I take a couple of tablespoonfuls of PLANTATION BITTERS once or twice a day for a week or so, and it invariably brings me round.

Mrs. K.—I do the same thing with the same pleasant result. I have implicit faith in that article.

Mrs. R.—Well, ladies, on your recommendation, I'll try it.

The particular attention of the Farming Community is called to our recent importation of Improved MOLINE PLOWS, greatly superior to any other Moline Plow in the Market, notwithstanding a certain firm, somewhat noted for truth and veracity—"so-called"—persist in affirming that they are "bogus," "California made," etc.

Don't fail to call and look at one of the MOLINE PLOW Co's LATEST MAKE, and we think you will coincide with a Yamhill Farmer, who, after "looking round" and hearing the old story about bogus Molines, etc., delivered himself thusly: "Well, Myers, I'll just chance a couple of those new plows, and if they are 'bogus,' as that gassy chap above here says, I'll be d—arned if I won't take bogus in mine every time."

Next month we expect another shipment of those justly celebrated BAIN WAGONS, (Have now only a few left of the last lot,) STILL FURTHER IMPROVED over all heretofore received. It is not presumption on our part to say that they are head and shoulders above any other Farm wagon in market, in point of material, workmanship and finish, having achieved a reputation throughout the West, and wherever introduced on the Pacific, second to no other wagon. Some of the first sold here—three years ago,—have never yet had a tire re-set, and our experience has enabled us to order many changes and improvements over the ordinary make of western wagons to meet the wants and requirements of this coast. We shall sell the BAIN WAGON at the lowest possible price for a first class wagon, and WARRANT them such, and in this connection beg to caution purchasers not to confound them with "inferior makes" that others are, or may endeavor to sell on the strength of the established reputation of the Bain manufacture, particularly after having made repeated and persistent efforts (without avail) to purchase wagons of Mr. Bain for this market.

The Sergeant of the Fiftieth.

Out of blackened clouds of powder
Gazed the moon upon the sight;
Where had rolled the battle's thunder,
Ere the coming of the night,
An old sergeant of the Fiftieth
To his General made report:
"Present four; and I: all wounded:
Praised be God, we hold the fort!"

Weak and trembling were his accents,
For his blood was almost spent,
But the General asked him, gruffly,
What this foolish trifling meant,
Where his company was quartered;
Turning to his comrades four,
He made answer: "Pardon, General,
Shot and shell have left no more.

These the mitrailleuse has spared us,
Five poor wounded, these alone;
Sharp and fierce the shock of battle,
But the enemy are gone!"
"Then return to your battalion,
Comrade brave," the General said;
"Pardon, General; here you see them,
On the crimson sod are laid

All the rest." The General murmured,
Gnawing at his mustache gray,
"Sorely my poor boys are beaten,
Cursed be their task to-day!
Still we took those murderous cannon—
To your regiments repair."
With low voice, replied the sergeant:
"Pardon, General; they are here."

Seizing with his hand the sergeant's,
Tears dissolved the General's pride,
"God avert more such misfortunes!"
In a quivering voice he cried.
"Friends, the Eagle which we followed,
And the flag, are they lost, [illegible]?"
"Never!" and the bloody tatters
From his breast the soldier drew!

A Chance for the Girls.

THE SCARCITY OF WOMEN IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

"Lady in Green Bay, Wisconsin," says a Sacramento, California, correspondent, "recently gave a party at her house, at which there were present eighteen babies, most of them with their mothers, and no less than sixteen baby carriages were standing in the yard at one time."

How Southern California sighs regretfully over such a paragraph? Instead of sixteen baby carriages in one yard what do you think of [illegible]teen horses tied to the horse-rack before the door of one marriageable maiden? [illegible] ranchers down south import [illegible] the Webfoot have done? [illegible] of these matters, a little story [illegible] in my own experience. When [illegible] across the continent afoot, [illegible] which was approaching Los Angeles [illegible] house made of rough boards, [illegible] alone in the vast clover [illegible] there was the above mentioned [illegible] horses hitched before the door. [illegible] from the remarkably lugubrious [illegible] of the people standing [illegible] there must be a funeral in progress [illegible] when I went in to procure a [illegible], I asked the boy, and he told me with such giggling and ducking of his head and his shoulders, that they were all courting his sister. This piqued my [illegible] at once; and I determined, if possible, to get a glimpse of a maiden who could exercise such potent attraction.

There were only two rooms in the house, with an entry way between, so that only one suitor at a time could visit this Penelope. The rest formed themselves into a melancholy row or queue, waiting to take their turns in peeping through the crack of the door. At the end of this queue I stationed myself, and soon found that, as soon as they looked, most of them came back to their turn again. There was one poor fellow whose distress was [illegible] apply only one eye to the crack, and [illegible] lodging backward and forward, right and left, as if to plead:

"[illegible] me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine."

[illegible] with one of them. But presently a [illegible] suggestion seized him. He turned his head to one side, and ranged both eyes at the crack at once, but this gave him such an overwhelming impression of her graces that he sighed and dropped a tear.

At last when I was pretty near the goal, my neighbor next in the rear began to suspect there was foul play, and scrutinized me carefully from head to foot, evidently not at all relishing the prospect of having his fourteenth chance reduced to a fifteenth. Then said he to me:

"'Scuse me, stranger, air you a resident anywhar roun' these parts?"

"I have not pre-empted any government yet, but if that crack in the door 'prospects well,' as the miners say, I intend to take up a quarter section at once," I answered.

"Wall, now, stranger, 'less you've took up some land already roun' hyar, you ain't got no right peckin' in that ar crack, interruptin' actool settlers."

The justice of this view was about to be controverted, nevertheless I persevered. The lady was a very pretty Texan damsel, with one of these pearly white puffy faces, which look as though they would collapse if kissed too eagerly, and which are wrinkly at twenty-five.

The Trade in Rags.

The extent and growth of the rag trade is described as follows by the Boston Commercial Bulletin:

Rags are admitted into this country free of duty, and the price for equal grades of home and foreign rags are the same usually, though just at the present time, owing to foreign wars, the whole tide of foreign stock has set toward America, and our markets are overloaded and depressed. As yet, publishers, the great purchasing interest of paper, have derived no benefits from this material dropping in the prices of stock that the paper manufacturers use, but there would be an immediate concession in prices, had not the past season been an unprecedentedly dry one, and the accumulated stocks of paper being cleaned off the market, so that mills are now running on full and over time to meet the pressing wants of consumers. In 1860, 83,795,717 pounds of rags were imported, valued at $3,154,577; the amount for this year will be in excess of this, as the Suez Canal has opened up a way for cheaper transportation from the further East, and already the Egyptian rag gatherers are collecting in vast quantities the accumulations upon the coast of the Indian Ocean, and hereafter the bulk of our lowest grades of colored linen rags will come from Alexandria.

Italy and Germany have sent to this country the bulk of all the linen rags consumed. For the former, Leghorn is the great emporium, and in fact it is for the Mediterranean. There the stock is sorted into grades, superior whites and common whites. The first are the gatherings from the better class of inhabitants and washed and bleached clean for packing. The second grade comes from the backs of the peasantry, and is of homespun texture; dingy, colored by bad washing and long use. A dirtier, grayer white stock is collected from the congregated poor of large cities, and is ranked as inferior common. It seems surprising that the supply of the Mediterranean is apparently so inexhaustible, when the native dealers and collectors continually cry their difficulty in keeping up stock, as the people dispose of their surplus rags after a severe and economical inspection of their size, strength, and adaptability to do further service as patches. It should, however, be borne in mind that flax is a staple of Southern Europe, and is in as general use as cotton in the United States.

The invoices from Germany are darker and stronger, and are of an even grade with Leghorn common whites. Their bales are well mixed with dirty, stained, parti-colored linen and cotton rags, and the task of sorting in the mills is a tedious and expensive one. America furnishes little or none of the linen stock used—her linen rags that come to the market are so sparsely mixed with cotton, that it has never been thought profitable to sort them out.

The amount of linen stock used by some of our mills is enormous. One manufacturer receives at his mills in Maine, each week, from sixty to seventy-five tons; and not less than two hundred tons per week are consumed at Holyoke and its immediate vicinity. Linen rags are always quoted at least a cent and a quarter below an equal selection or grade of cotton. They are not in so general demand as cotton. Being introduced only in the best qualities of paper, and the supply always being equal, if not in excess, of the wants of the manufacturers.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or of from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his special study for years and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 1,957.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.
Consultations FREE.
Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.

LAND DEPARTMENT
OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned:

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd-numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminous with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect.
